Violet and her best friend, Alden, have been playing all day on their International Space Station Tree House. In all the excitement, Violet misplaced her helmet in the tree and cannot do her spacewalk. She could really use your help!

Can you help Violet travel from the base of the tree to her helmet and down the slide wire to the finish?
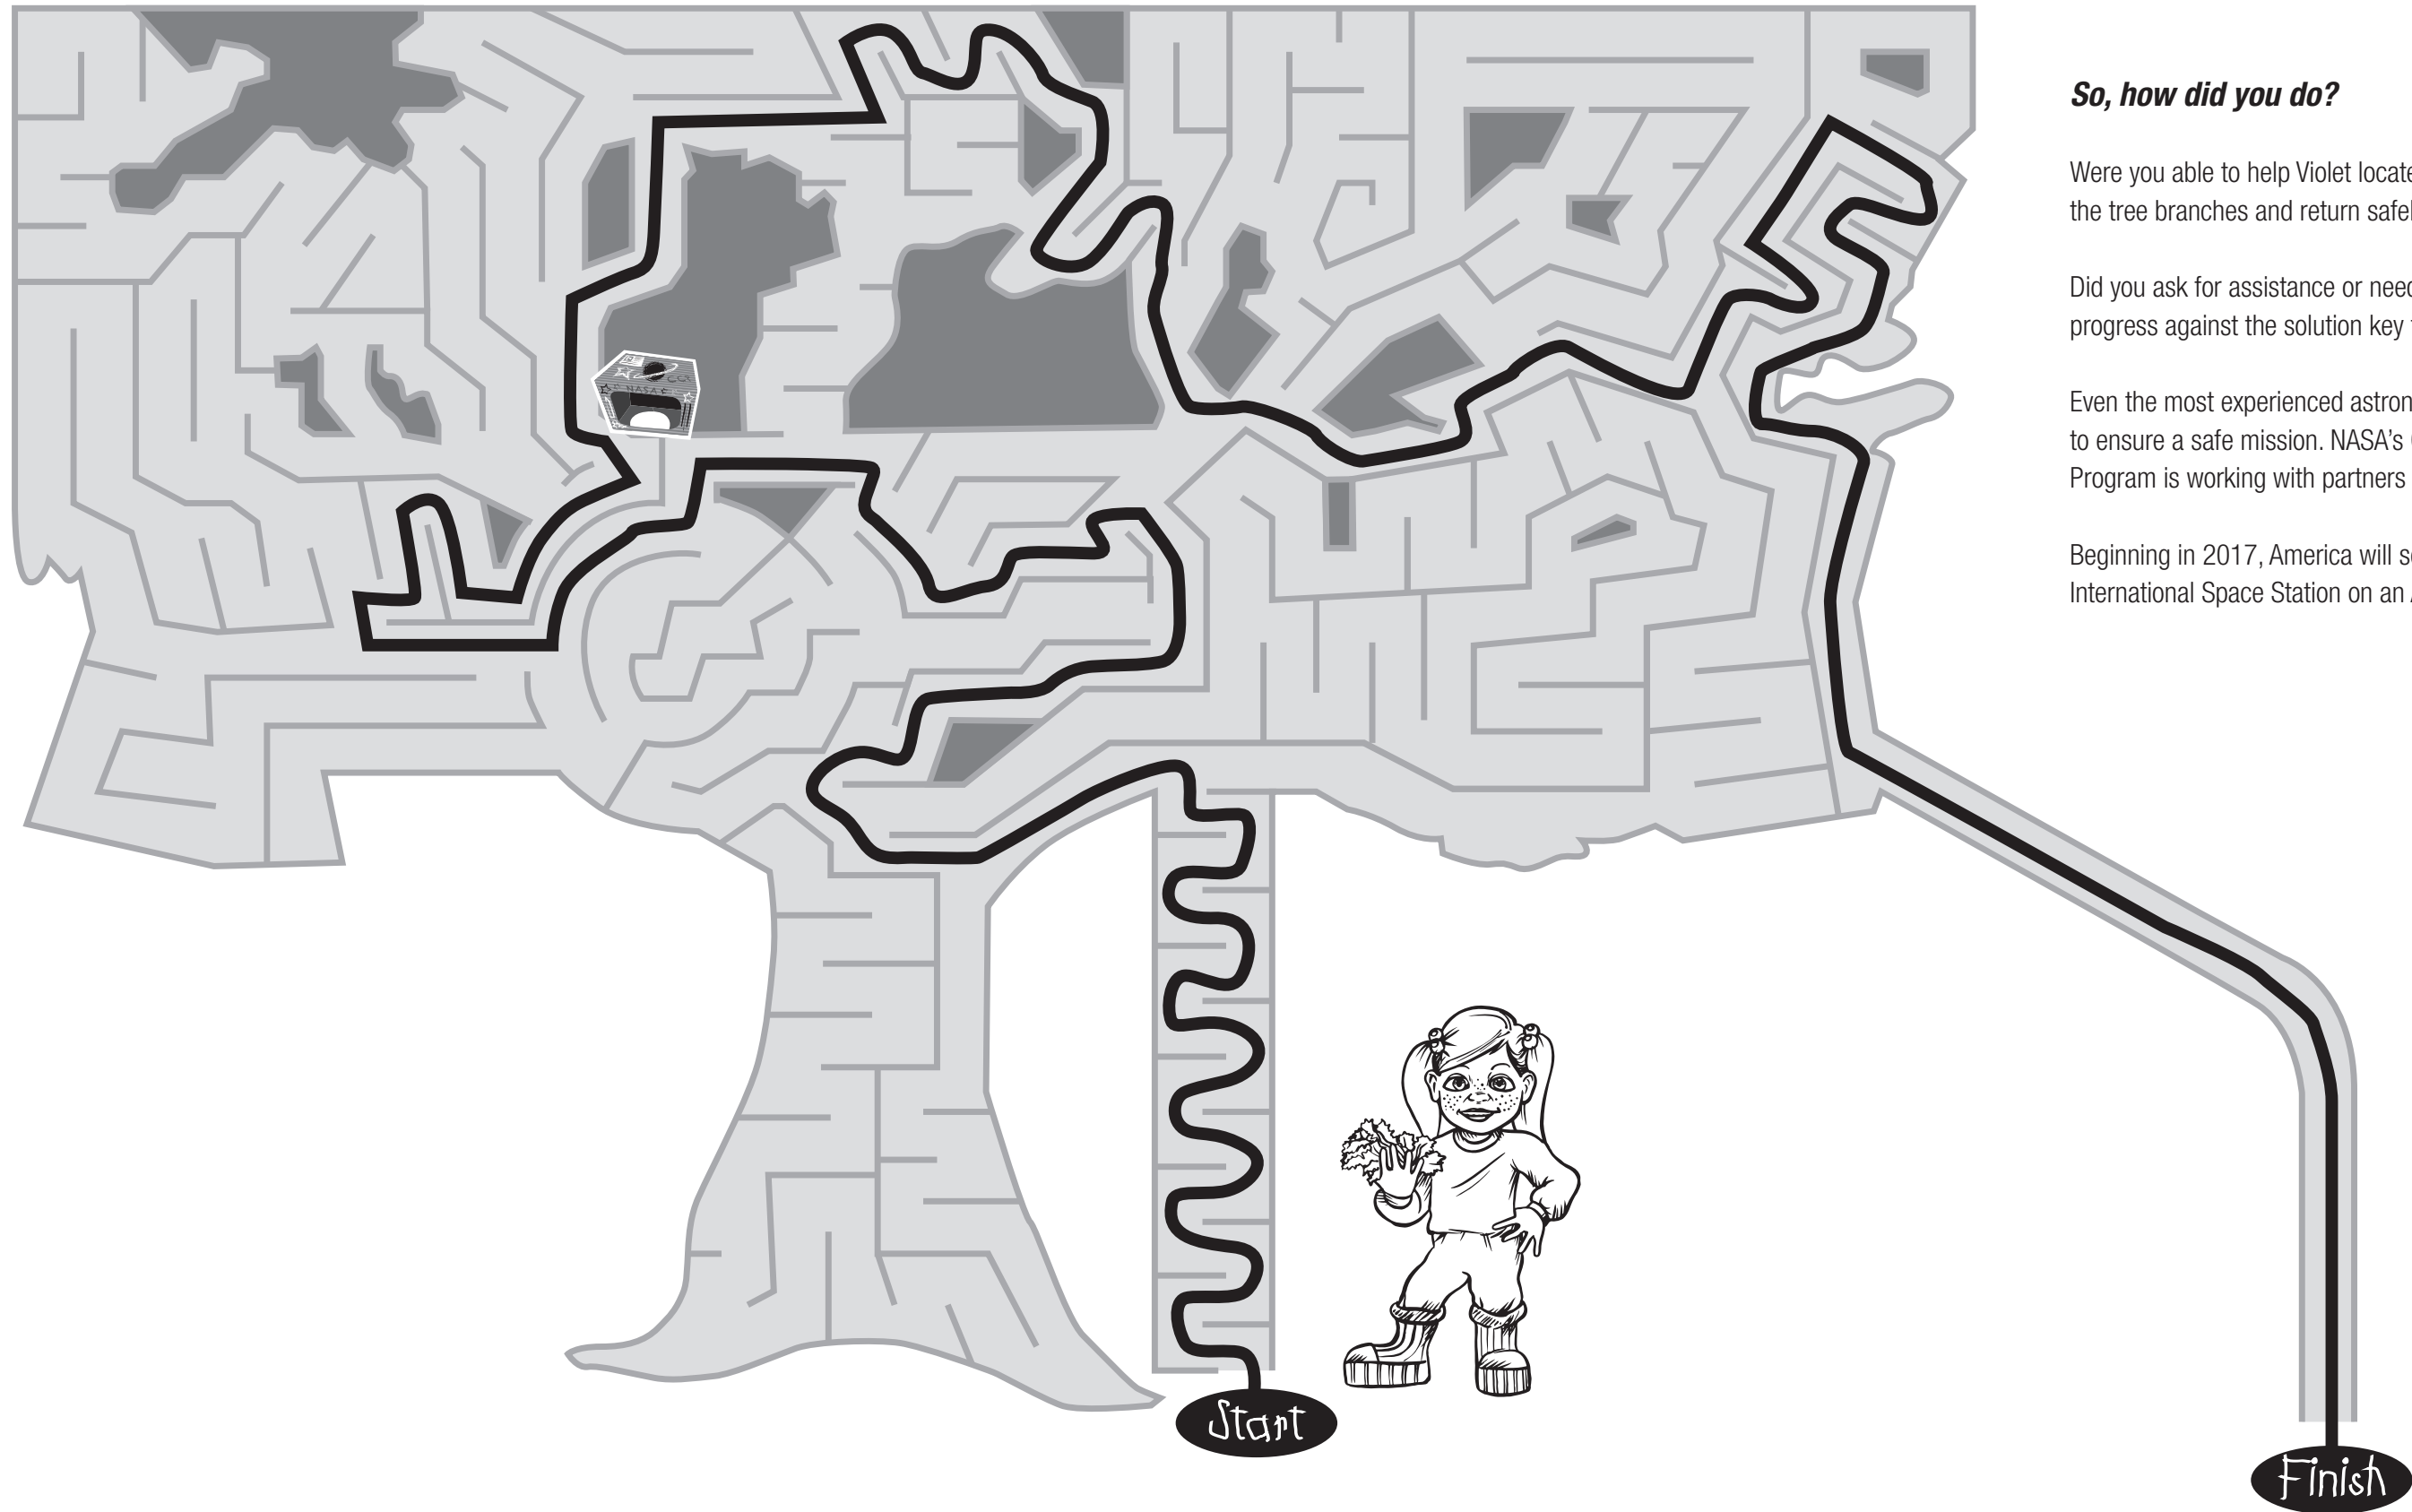

Using your favorite crayon or pencil, carefully draw a path that will guide Violet through the maze and reunite her with her lost helmet.

Solution

So, how did you do?

Were you able to help Violet locate her helmet, navigate the tree branches and return safely back to the ground?

Did you ask for assistance or need to check your progress against the solution key to the left?

Even the most experienced astronaut depends on others to ensure a safe mission. NASA's Commercial Crew Program is working with partners to do just that.

Beginning in 2017, America will see a crew return to the International Space Station on an American spacecraft.
